

Arts House July–December, 2013

MESSAGE FROM THE LORD MAYOR

Melbourne's contemporary arts scene is diverse and cutting-edge, and the seven shows that make up season two at Arts House are no exception.

One of the season's highlights will be a co-presentation between Arts House and Melbourne Festival: A Small Prometheus, a dance work by Stephanie Lake and Robin Fox that explores the consequences of small actions and the fragility of physical systems. We are excited to be working with Melbourne Festival on this premiere event and look forward to further collaborations in the future.

Arts House gives audiences the chance to experience works by established and emerging practitioners working in performance, live art, installations, and residencies. Its aim is to create conversation and engagement across our community.

I encourage you all to head to Arts House for an unforgettable experience.

WELCOME

Welcome to an enquiry into what's happening in contemporary theatre across the country, with companies and collaborators from Perth, Sydney and Palm Island. Experience the shifts of perspective as artists tell stories informed by place; connect with the contested idea of what it is to be Australian; and explore creative forms emerging across the country.

In The Confidence Man (Side Pony Productions) audience members perform for one other, under strict instruction. PROMPTER (Hydra Poesis) invites five onstage performers and five online performers from around the world to participate in a meditation on mediation. Nothing escapes the eye in Whelping Box (Branch Nebula, Matt Prest and Clare Britton), where spectators become complicit in a display of aggression, encircling the performers inside a 9 x 9 metre wooden box. Beautiful One Day (ILBIJERRI, Belvoir and version 1.0) and I'm Your Man (Roslyn Oades) are verbatim works pieced together entirely from interviews, foregrounding the realness and honouring the actual. And we're delighted to co-present with Melbourne Festival A Small Prometheus, the re-imagining of an eternal story of fire from choreographer Stephanie Lake and composer/designer Robin Fox. Last but not least, an iconic Melbourne true-crime story is told in its place of origin, in a rare and special performance of The Hanging of Jean Lee (Andrée Greenwell).

Urgent stories, debated histories and ancient myths require new forms to tell them – the wrestling of meaning into and out of the work is the imaginative risk that we all participate in.

This is culture. This is art.

Here you are.

PROMPTER

HYDRA POESIS

Something is broken in the world of PROMPTER. We are caught in the maelstrom of instantaneous reporting, playing the game of guess-what-is-happening-while-it-streams-right-into-your-home. The only story we can't predict is the one that's still unfolding.

Boundaries between media and audience are dissolving as an epidemic of performative compulsion spreads through bedrooms and living spaces across the globe. Journalists caught at the centre of the storm realise they have become the darlings of disaster and violence. Impossibly, irrationally, the collective gaze being funnelled back through their camera lenses seems to have taken on very real power.

PROMPTER is a work of magic-political-(quasi-science-fiction)-realism featuring the work of an interdisciplinary team of artists from Australia, Argentina, the UK, the USA and France, and written by journalist and writer Patrick Pittman and Hydra Poesis director Sam Fox. PROMPTER plays out onstage through broadcast, theatre, dance and performance art, and features an online chorus streaming from the bedrooms of the internet.

THE CONFIDENCE MAN

SIDE PONY PRODUCTIONS

Presented by Arts House and Side Pony Productions

When a large sports bag full of cash is brought into Peter's very ordinary home, his family finds itself caught up in a sinister and disturbing chain of events. You are invited to step onto the floor and into this gripping thriller, experiencing first-hand the sordid betrayal and moral philandering that's about to blanket this suburban dream.

Devised by Zoe Pepper and Adriane Daff of award-winning young company, Side Pony Productions, The Confidence Man is performed by audience members, equipped with masks and headsets to play out the story.

Those who prefer to watch can survey the action from the perimeter, eavesdropping on the characters' most private thoughts and conversations.

In The Confidence Man, Dogville meets Hitchcock's Shadow of a Doubt. A morally complex tale complete with goodies, baddies, and a dose of good old-fashioned psychotic menace, The Confidence Man unfolds with the gripping intimacy of a tale whispered in your ear.

Director: Zoe Pepper ♦ Writers: Zoe Pepper and Adriane Daff ♦ Composer: Ash Gibson Grieg ♦

Mask Designer: Rebecca Baumann ♦ Sound Designer: Sam Price ♦ Lighting Designer: Lucy Birkinshaw ♦

I'M YOUR MAN

A BELVOIR PRODUCTION
CREATED BY ROSLYN OADES

The boxing gym: a place of dreams of glory, of a better life. The walls are covered in inspirational quotes; bodies are in constant motion; the stakes are high.

For 18 months theatre-maker Roslyn Oades and her trusty tape recorder followed a determined young boxer from Bankstown as he prepared for a world-title fight. On the way she encountered past legends, up-and-comers and failed contenders whose lives have been irreversibly changed by the fight game. Behind this thrilling, brutal sport lies a compelling tale of courage and its cost.

I'm Your Man is no ordinary slice-of-life. The actors wear earpieces, taking their words directly from audio recordings to create a vivid, hyper-natural documentary theatre.

One thing is certain: even the high-flyer will eventually lose. A sweaty, adrenaline-fuelled study of a contemporary masculine drama, I'm Your Man challenges preconceived notions of the tough, testosterone-fuelled world of boxing, creating new ways to experience real-life stories in theatrical form.

Creator/Director: Roslyn Oades ♦ Sound Designer: Bob Scott ♦ Lighting and Set Designer: Neil Simpson ♦
Movement Director: Lee Wilson – Branch Nebula ♦ Script Dramaturge: Raimondo Cortese ♦ Performers: Michael Mohammed Ahmad, Billy McPherson, Katia Molino, Justin Rosniak, John Shrimpton

WHELPING BOX

BRANCH NEBULA, MATT PREST
AND CLARE BRITTON

Provocative and intelligent, visceral and strange: Whelping Box is a breeding ground for wild things; for dogs and gods.

Two performers chain themselves to stakes, to test their limits and strip themselves of civility. Through feats of endurance, absurd rituals and idiosyncratic mythmaking, they map out a restless and aggressive initiation. Like athletes or shamans, they are your guides, guinea pigs and preachers. They feed on your energy in a series of tasks that attempt to transcend the confines of normality.

With the audience seated around the action in a giant whelping-box-cum-catwalk, this is a place to test the body, the performer, and the spectator; a place of unsettling permissions and a pageantry born of violence. Blurring the lines between theatre, dance and performance art, Whelping Box fearlessly explores concepts of self-made mythology, machismo, and the power that lies in places of powerlessness.

PERMANENT vs IMPERMANENT 2

Traditional architectural ornaments tend to preserve an era in time – their beauty invites reflection on the history associated with civic spaces. Olaf Meyer's second iteration of Permanent vs Impermanent adds a layer of digital ornament to the historic North Melbourne Town Hall, further developing his use of video projection onto its majestic clock tower façade.

Superimposed, shifting, digital layers and abstract light treatments create a revealing array of spatial conditions within the Town Hall's architectural features. With its shape-shifting ability, can a digital ornament transcend a purely decorative civic ritual? Can an impermanent and changing ornamental layer shift our focus onto ourselves and future aspirations rather than glorifying and preserving past glory?

Permanent vs Impermanent is commissioned by the City of Melbourne Public Art Program, with support from Arts House.

IS ART FOR ART'S SAKE?

ARTISTS FORUM

A one-day forum bringing together international, national and local artists to talk about arts practice in the context of participatory models of creation.

With the development of interdisciplinary arts, live art and new, hybrid forms, has art become more exclusive or inclusive for audiences and for people who don't usually participate in art making? Why do some artists choose to work with non-artists using participatory models, and why do some artists prefer not to engage non-artists when making their work? This forum will encourage discussion, debate and provocation around collaborative arts practice.

Is Art for Art's Sake? is convened by the City of Melbourne's Arts and Participation program.

A SMALL PROMETHEUS

STEPHANIE LAKE AND ROBIN FOX

World Premiere

Presented by Arts House, Melbourne Festival,
Stephanie Lake and Robin Fox

The highly charged and evocative sound and smell of a struck match provide the ignition point for A Small Prometheus; a new work for five dancers about the consequences of small actions and the fragility of physical systems.

Combustion and transformation drive the unfolding choreography as dancers synchronise, mesh and collide. Fire-driven kinetic sculptures become part of live interactive sound-and-movement loops between dancer, sculpture and machine.

Two of Australia's most exciting and uncompromising artists, Stephanie Lake and Robin Fox, seamlessly interlace choreography, sound and objects to create rich tension in a work that swings deftly between chaotic, free-form experiments and mechanically intricate moments. A Small Prometheus creates a strange and enthralling world of darkness, light and the spark that mediates the two.

Created by: Stephanie Lake and Robin Fox ♦ Choreographer: Stephanie Lake ♦ Composer and Sculpture Designer: Robin Fox ♦ Performers: Alana Everett, Lauren Langlois, Rennie McDougall, Lily Paskas, Lee Serle ♦ Lighting Designer: Jen Hector ♦ Costume Designer: Harriet Oxley ♦ Production Manager: Richard Dinnen, Megafun ♦ Producer: Insite Arts

BEAUTIFUL ONE DAY

ILBIJERRI, BELVOIR AND VERSION 1.0

Presented by Arts House, ILBIJERRI Theatre Company,
Belvoir and version 1.0

Palm Island, 2004. An Aboriginal man dies in police custody. Members of the Palm Island community make a direct challenge to police power and the police station is torched. Eight years later, the people of Palm Island continue to demand real justice, and all the while life continues.

ILBIJERRI Theatre Company, version 1.0, Belvoir and the Palm Island community have come together to interpret these events against the full sweep of the island's history. The result is Beautiful One Day.

An antidote to the relentlessly negative media coverage, Beautiful One Day interweaves the stories of Palm Island, the diktats of white Australia, and the voices of the community. Made through conversation, through argument, through long walks and frequent eruptions of joyfulness, this is a show about what an honest talk might really look like.

THE HANGING OF JEAN LEE

ANDRÉE GREENWELL,
JORDIE ALBISTON AND ABE POGOS

A razor-sharp 'underbelly song cycle', The Hanging of Jean Lee traces the life of the last Australian woman hanged, at Pentridge Gaol in 1951. Inspired by Melbourne poet Jordie Albiston's chilling verse biography, Lee's story plays out in a dramatic concert version with original music, lyrical text and haunting projections.

Jean Lee, along with lover Robert Clayton and criminal Norman Andrews, was convicted for torturing and murdering 73-year-old bookie William 'Pop' Kent. When questioned, Lee perversely confessed sole responsibility, attempting to protect her lover.

Post-punk music genres infuse a score that evokes a noir-esque underworld and exposes raw emotions, performed by iconic Melburnians Max Sharam (Jean Lee), Bad Seeds co-founder Hugo Race, Jeff Duff and Simon Maiden. Andrée Greenwell's music veers poignantly from erotic charge to sharp lament, combining pop, impro and jazz forms to create a unique 'theatre of music' – unnerving, confronting, and ultimately humane.

A seven-piece band will play out the life and times of Jean Lee, including legendary jazz musicians Lachlan Davidson (woodwind) and Greg Spence (trumpet), violinist Andrea Keeble (Collider/David Chesworth Ensemble/Black Arm Band), keyboardist Hanna Silva, guitarist Willy Zygier (Deborah Conway & Willy Zygier), together with bassist Lucas Taranto and drummer Joshua Barber, both of the internationally acclaimed Gotye.

Composer/Image Director: Andrée Greenwell • Libretto: Jordie Albiston and Abe Pogos based upon the verse biography The Hanging of Jean Lee by Jordie Albiston (Black Pepper) • Performers: Max Sharam, Hugo Race, Jeff Duff, Simon Maiden • Musicians: Andrea Keeble, Greg Spence, Lachlan Davidson, Hanna Silva, Willy Zygier, Lucas Taranto, Joshua Barber • Audio: Michael Hewes • Production Manager/Lighting Designer: Neil Simpson

Culture LAB

CultureLAB is Arts House's dedicated, venue-based creative development program, conducted in partnership with Arts Victoria. With creative collaborations and explorations, CultureLAB supports artists across all art forms to create powerful, exciting, ground-breaking and original works.

Here's our line-up of CultureLAB artists for season 2, 2013...

BOHO INTERACTIVE MODELLING PLAY

Boho Interactive's Modelling Play (featuring Applespiel Collective) is a participatory tabletop performance based on the science of climate and social modelling. Using techniques drawn from theatre and board-gaming, Modelling Play places the audience in control of every aspect of a fictional music festival, from programming bands and sponsors to managing crises and natural disasters.

POST OEDIPUS SCHMOEDIPUS

Oedipus Schmoedipus is an ambitious epic compiled of every death scene in the Western theatrical canon – but not how you remember them. Every death-threat, -wish and -rattle is catalogued and re-ordered; images dismembered, speeches cut into individual words. Reordering these parts, macabre scrap-bookers post present their audacious re-imagining of the classics: a Frankenstein-style collective manifesto on death.

AEONS ON MIDNIGHT JAYABAYA: NOTHING IS AS IT WAS BEFORE

Jayabaya: Nothing is as it was before is an experiential look into visions of the future in Indonesia and Australia. A doomsday party. An end. A new beginning. Participants will be taken on a journey through the prophecies of the Jayabaya (King of the Kediri in East Java from 1135 to 1157) and the current anxieties around global destruction. Drink, eat, dance and party as the world as we know it comes to an end. Part installation, part performance art, part theatre, part in-parcel party.

TIM DARBYSHIRE STAMPEDE THE STAMPEDE

Stampe the Stampede explores ideas of turbulence and rupturing through experiments between body, object and sound installations. It draws on dynamics and associations including violence, war, catastrophe, chaos, nonsensical humour, orgasm, crash, earthquake, and the volatile nature of the human psyche.

POLYGOT THEATRE AND THE SUITCASE ROYALE SEPARATION STREET

One story and two separate viewpoints: children check in their adults at the cloak room and enter a world of adventure through a fridge; adults find themselves in the centre of a howling storm, taking a test. In this fully immersive experience, both audiences take on pivotal roles within the story and are only reunited at the end.

ARTS HOUSE

Our program would not be possible without the generous support to the artists from:

ARTS HOUSE, CITY

Arts House is one of Australia's most exciting presenters of cutting-edge contemporary arts with programs of performance, live art, installation and multidisciplinary work – a range of national and international offerings that nurture, support and stimulate cultural engagement across our city and beyond, all year, every year.

Arts House supports artists to develop and create work and invites audiences to experience work that takes artistic risks, invites imaginative and interactive responses, and explores the urgent issues of our time in new and surprising ways. Forums, discussions and workshops provide opportunities for artists and audiences to connect, as well as special biennial events Going Nowhere – a sustainable international arts exchange program – and two festivals presented in collaboration with venues across the city – the Live Art Festival (March 2014) and Australia's only contemporary dance festival, Dance Massive (March 2015).

Through the CultureLAB program, the City of Melbourne and Arts House together with our partners at Arts Victoria, cement the crucial connection of these world-class presentation spaces with space and time for development, providing Melbourne with a prolific incubator for many of Australia's most innovative, incisive and thoughtful emerging and established contemporary creators.

Arts House operates across three historic venues within the City of Melbourne: North Melbourne Town Hall, the Meat Market and the Warehouse. Arts House's venues are also used by local communities and artists whose work, while not part of the curated program of events, is crucial to the cultural ecology of Melbourne.

As part of the City of Melbourne, Arts House enjoys a stability that allows for long-term artistic vision and provides firm ground for the creative investment that is crucial to the development of new ideas and art forms. Our combination of skilled curation of celebrated national and international artists with a vibrant Expressions of Interest process ensures that new voices are heard and supported within a distinctive and compelling program.

Melbourne is a creative city, with an intense concentration of innovators across diverse creative sectors, and a growing community of artists, arts workers and audiences hungry for artistic stimulation and culture. Arts House is the north-side magnet within the City of Melbourne, meeting this demand; nurturing, inspiring and delivering a diversity of adventurous contemporary arts experiences.

Arts House values an imaginative, just and environmentally sustainable global society. Respectful of all members of our diverse community, Arts House acknowledges the traditions of Indigenous Australians and their unique and continuing contribution to our culture; also respectfully acknowledging that our activities take place on the land of the traditional owners of the Kulin Nation.

For more information about Arts House's programs or Expression of Interest process, please contact us on (03) 9322 3720 or visit artshouse.com.au.
